SERVING THE STUDENTS OF CSUSB FOR 39 YEARS

VOL.39 ISSUE 1

Making a Difference: C.S.S.A. looking for a Student Trustee

Taisha McMickens
Staff Writer

The California State Student Association (CSSA) is accepting applications now through Oct. 12, for a new student trustee to represent all California State University students.

To become a student trustee one must be a Junior in good standing with a current GPA of 2.0 or above.

Trustees must be able to meet seven times a year at the CSU Office of the Chancellor in Long Beach and travel throughout the State.

Student Trustee responsibilities include bringing student issues to the Board of Trustees and advocating action on such issues.

All appointed trustees receive $100 stipend each time they conduct official business for CSU.

Manager of Media Relations for the CSU system, Clara Potes-Fellow said, "The Board is for the students, so it is natural that they have a [student] voice representing them."

Trustees work with other student organizations to resolve student issues as well.

CSUSB Opens Door to Katrina Victims

Aaron Sanchez
Staff Writer

CSUSB is accepting applications for admission for the fall quarter from students in the Gulf state areas who were affected by Hurricane Katrina. This includes those students who are lacking eligibility requirements.

Policies regarding admission requirements, such as the A-G requirements for first-time freshman and transfer students, along with entry level English and Mathematics placement exams, have been temporarily waived in an effort to help as many students as possible to recover from the damage of Katrina.

"In light of the tragedy from Hurricane Katrina, Cal State San Bernardino faculty, staff and students are prepared to be as helpful as possible through a variety of support efforts," said President Albert Karnig.

So far, ten students have applied for admission to the University, and five are being accommodated in on-campus housing.

These students are receiving out-of-state-student housing benefits ranging up to $6,750.

Those who live on campus are having their housing paid for by the University.

These students are receiving out-of-state-student housing benefits ranging up to $6,750. Some of the students will be receiving meal plans as well.

The University is also waiving non-resident fees for students coming from the affected area. Flexible payment plans are being offered to students that require them.

Robert McGowan, associate vice president for enrollment services said, "We're trying to do everything we can to anticipate and meet the needs of the victims in a timely way."

"Particularly those students who are no longer able to attend institutions in the hurricane-affected area and would like to instead continue their educational plans with us."

One congressman has proposed a plan that could contribute $4.6 billion over a five-year period to various schools in the form of loan forgiveness and one-time only grants.

Celebrating Our Country's History

Yadira Ortiz
Multicultural Editor

Professor Edward Erler delivered his speech, "The Enduring Constitution," to CSUSB students, staff, and faculty in the Social and Behavioral Sciences Building on Sept. 28.

"We are required to celebrate [Constitution Day] by a new federal law sponsored by Robert Bird.

"Every education institution that receives federal funds must observe Constitution day," said CSUSB Professor and Chair of the Political Science Department, Brian Janiske. "Constitution Day took place on Sept. 17, which is the anniversary of the signing of the Constitution."

CSUSB celebrated Constitution Day the day when the document was sent to the states.

"The Constitution is the oldest written constitution in History and that is enduring," said Janiske.

In his speech Erler explained the importance of the United States Constitution and its principles.

Erler, a graduate from Claremont Graduate School, is an "internationally recognized expert on Constitutionalism and Federalism," according to Janiske.

Erler serves on the California Civil Rights Commission.

He had just returned from Iraq in May, where he and "other visiting scholars and dignitaries met with the Constitution draft commission," said Janiske.

In his speech, Erler narrated Abraham Lincoln's view on the Declaration of Independence, written in 1859.

"All honor to Jefferson - to the man who, in the concrete pressure of a struggle for national independence by a single people, had the coolness, forecast, and capacity to introduce into a merely revolutionary document, an abstract truth, applicable to all men and all times, and so embalm it there, that to-day, and in all coming days, it shall be a rebuke and a tumbling-block to the very harbingers of re-appearing tyranny and oppression."

Erler said that he thinks Lincoln understood the American Founders better than anyone.

CSUSB Librarian Eva Marie Sorrell, also helped with CSUSB's Constitution Day by creating a website on the United States Constitution.

"The Constitution website I created is a list of websites that provide educational resources on the U.S. Constitution and Constitution Day.

"Many of the websites link to other resources, as well as provide lesson plans, learning materials, and other ways to help celebrate Constitution Day," said Sorrell.

"Education in the Constitution and the principles of constitutional government is vital even indispensable to intelligent citizenship."

"Since sovereignty rests in the people and is expressed primarily through elections, intelligent voting is key to maintaining constitutional government," said Erler.

This website can be helpful to students who would like to learn more about the United States Constitution or are having trouble in their government classrooms.

"I have been teaching American Government courses at CSUSB for more than thirty years."

Fighting Against Global Warming

Energy-saving Solar Panels entirely cover a parking lot at Cal State Northridge.

Danielle Miller
Staff Writer

The CSU Board of Trustees approved a new University Clean Energy Policy Wednesday, Sept. 21.

This will put CSUSB on the forefront of a fight against global warming because the campus will promote and invest in renewable energy.

Each new building and renovation will be required to meet a new design standard.

The policy will guarantee that 25 percent of CSU energy will come from solar power by 2014, which will greatly reduce the cost of electricity for the University.

The state government is now giving incentives in the form of rebate programs that help with the cost of installation of devices such as solar panels.

The solar panels can be installed on the roofs of classrooms and in parking lots, which can also serve as car covers for vehicles.

This policy will allow CSUSB students and staff to become part of a developing Clean Energy Policy. It will not only make electricity more cost effective, but it will also help build a clean future.

Many students said that they support this effort.

Aida Carrasco, a Communication Studies senior, said she believes that "CSUSB Clean Energy Policy is a great thing that will help make our school a leader in the fight against pollution, as well as create an opportunity for CSUSB to save money from electricity that will be able to be spent on other things like new programs, expansion of the campus and parking."

"This policy is great for the environment, as well as the future of my own children," said Quiana Ducksworth, a senior in Criminal Justice.

Jeff Miller, a former Cal State Northridge student and current resident of Northridge, said he supports the policy because he has been able to see what has happened on the campus.

"Construction caused by the solar panels was not much of an inconvenience and it created covered parking for students."

"Many of the local residents were encouraged by CSUN and started looking into investing in their own solar panels for the good of the environment as well as their pockets," said Miller.

He hopes the campus will be able to use the money for future expansion and eventually generate enough energy to possibly sell back to electricity companies.

Student Trustee

The Board of Trustees creates policy on student fees, admission standards, student housing and parking issues.

A recent issue on the table involves helping Latino students prepare for college.

It also aims to increase their graduation rates by partnering with the community and teachers.

The Governor appoints two Student Trustees from nominees proposed by the CSSA for a two-year term.

First-year student trustees cannot vote on issues; however, second-year student trustees gain full voting privileges and have the same power as other board members.

Second year student trustees have voting power to choose Chancellors and Presidents, and help develop administrative policy for each CSU campus.

In addition, student trustees are "active in their communities and on-campus, in political organizations," said Joe Gutierrez, Assistant Director of CSUSB Public Affairs.

According to Gutierrez, during the first year student trustees learn how the system functions and attend board meetings.

In describing current second-year student trustee Corey Jackson, Gutierrez said, "He's very proactive. Active in student associations and is involved in the NAACP Youth Council."

Interested students may complete the CSSA application, supply a Verification of Status form, prepare a resume, and write an essay of 750 words or less.

The completed package can be hand delivered or mailed to the CSSA office at: 401 Golden Shore, Suite 135, Long Beach, CA 90802.

knowledge of the Constitution and the basic principles of constitutional government, including the Declaration of Independence.

"Over the years, I have found that once students realize the importance of the topic.

"They invariably become interested and make great progress in their understanding of basic issues and institutions," said Erler.

Erler advised students to read the newspaper and editorial articles to keep up with political issues.

"I try to spark interest among students in politics and political issues.

"Reading newspapers and editorial articles is essential, but students usually have not developed the habit of regular newspaper reading.

"I try to concentrate on current and controversial issues to bring interest to the topic of politics. It is not easy, but it is vital."

The loan forgiveness would be given to low and middle-income students from campuses affected by Katrina and Rita. It would allow for $2,500 in loan forgiveness for each full year of school to a maximum of $10,000 for students in four year colleges, and a maximum of $5,000 for students in community colleges.

The plan also calls for one-time grant for affected colleges to help with the recruitment and retention of students, faculty, and staff. This plan could provide for $3 billion in these one-time only grants.

Dr. Marvalene Hughes, President of Dillard University said, "Providing students and their families with economic incentives to enroll in our schools sends just the right signal of hope to New Orleans. Namely, that Americans of all backgrounds are ready to come to New Orleans to study, grow, and enjoy our renewed cultural life. We can and will rebuild."

Housing says 'Welcome Residents'

Tynesha Woolfork
Campus News Editor

After a long, tiresome day of move-in, the incoming residents of housing for fall 2005 were greeted with a week full of programs called "Welcome Week."

"Welcome Week" lasted from Sept. 18-24, with an estimated 20 programs. The programs were designed to inform, build community and help students get involved on campus. Some of the programs included: "Laundry Time," "Coyote Ugly Dance" and "Power House."

"Laundry Time" taught residents how to do their own laundry. According to Anna Sanchez, an RA for University Village, many of those who attended had little experience in washing their own clothing.

The staff provided demonstrations on how to hand wash and properly sort clothing.

Sanchez said that one resident actually participated and brought his dirty clothes.

After the program, "[the residents] came out of it more confidently," Sanchez said.

"Housing isn't here only for administrative purposes, but to [...] help [students] with personal issues, like laundry" Sanchez said.

The "Coyote Ugly Dance" was a collaborative activity with Associated Students, Inc. It was a dance, held in the Upper Commons. Darron Pinkney, an RA for Arrowhead Village, said that it was a good time.

The residents were able to "let loose" and shake a "tail-feather," while being in a safe and secure environment.

"It was an affective [community building] program because the students were able to interact and meet other residents,"

Pinkney said.

At the "Power House" program, a collaboration with the Green Campus, a department within the Environmental Health and Safety department, residents were able to win free electronics and appliances.

Julian Jackson, a resident of Serrano Village, said he actually picked up some important information. The Green Campus provided fliers and brochures that gave energy conservation tips.

The Green Campus also plan to hold a contest for housing residents, that will give the winner a full energy-saving makeover, including a new TV and refrigerator.

There are many perks for residents living on-campus. Besides living only a few steps from class, students are guaranteed to save on gas and receive free Internet service and cable T.V.

New and Improved Rec Sports on the Way

Amy Bickett
Staff Writer

The CSUSB Department of Recreation offers a plethora of new activities this fall, including the student-directed Outdoors' program. This program offers students the opportunity to go hiking, camping, kayaking, rafting, climbing, snowboarding and more.

David Conover, the Outdoors Coordinator, said this program has two great advantages. Being a member of the student staff develops leadership qualities.

CSUSB students get to explore the "amazing playground that is right behind their campus."

The Rec Center website says the mission of the Recreational Sports Department "is to provide a variety of safe and enjoyable programs and facilities to meet the diverse needs of the CSUSB community by creating a healthy, social environment, enriching the quality of life and enhancing the educational experience."

CSUSB Outdoors wants people to get out and recreate, Conover said. He added that with the construction of the new Recreation Center to be completed in spring 2006, many new opportunities are coming.

Communications major Eddie Garcia said, "I think that the new Outdoors program will provide many opportunities for students, which is what CSUSB needs. It's great!"

Some previous participants relished the success of the programs last year and are excited for this season to begin. "I can't speak for every student, but dodgeball was wicked-awesome last year!" said Ryan McLaughlin, a senior at CSUSB.

CSUSB Outdoors also plans events and outings for organizations and campus groups.

The organizations can rent equipment, including tents, backpacks, car camping gear, water bottles and snowboards. Conover said his group could customize any trip or outing desired by any school organization.

The Center also offers Intramural sports. Dodgeball, flag football, 3-on-3 basketball and soccer are all available this quarter.

Students can sign up at the Center as a team or as a free agent. Intramural sports allow teams to compete against other teams on campus and get the chance to play against other universities. The leagues include men's only, women's only, co-ed, and open teams.

The Center is committed to helping students enhance physical fitness, learn new skills, expand their knowledge base and have fun.

Palm Desert Campus Gets $4.5 Million

Courtesy Of
CSUSB Public Affairs

The city of Palm Desert has again stepped up to the plate to support the growing Palm Desert Campus of California State University, San Bernardino.

Its City Council recently unanimously voted to give $4.5 million over three years toward construction of the third and final Phase I building, which will house nursing instruction and allied health sciences programs.

Together with gifts from other local cities, including Rancho Mirage, Indio, La Quinta and Coachella, and the Desert Healthcare District, as well as other gifts from individuals and foundations, the campus has now accounted for nearly $9 million of the $12 million cost of the building, said Fred Jandt, dean of the Palm Desert Campus.

"This is a tremendous vote of confidence on the part of Palm Desert, which has already supported construction of our existing buildings and provided the 200-acre reserve for creation of our campus on Cook Street," Jandt said.

Cal State San Bernardino President Albert K. Karnig said the vote was a shot in the arm for the construction.

"We're all pleased that local governments are willing to support an investment in the future of our youth, and from its initial donation of land to its recent $4.5 million gift, the Palm Desert City Council has been a beacon lighting the way for higher education in the Valley," he said.

The health sciences complex will be built immediately to the south of the Indian Wells Center for Educational Excellence, which opened last year. The two buildings complement the Mary Stuart Rodgers Gateway Building, the campus's first structure.

All of the construction is financed through a public-private partnership in which the community - including cities, agencies, foundations and individuals - is donating to the nearly $40-million total cost.

CSUSB Hosts Native American Day

Jude M. Whitton/Chronicle
The San Bernardino Museum displayed Native American artifacts on Native American Day.

Jude M. Whitton
Staff Writer

They saved the best for last, when CSUSB hosted California Native American day, along with the San Manuel Band of Mission Indians, on the evening of Friday, Sept. 23.

This event ended a week long event focused on educating elementary and high school students from San Bernardino County Schools and San Bernardino City Unified School District on the history of California's Native Americans from tribal elders and members.

Native American storyteller Jackie Nunez took the stage telling the crowd her view of the promise the future holds for Native Americans. She spoke of her grandmother being spit on because of her Native American heritage. Nunez stated she felt uplifted by the culturally rich crowd that had gathered for the evening's festi-ties and celebration.

This is the sixth year that CSUSB has hosted this event focusing on educating and correcting misconceptions and myths about California's first people.

Throughout the week students interacted with California tribal elders and members in activities like basketry and pottery, music, tribal cultures and history, tribal government and storytelling, all offering students a hands-on cultural learning experience.

During the evening celebration, these activities were also shared with the crowd that gathered. Traditional Native American brush dancers from the Northern California Yurok Tribe performed for the crowd, along with performances by the Southern California bird singers, made up of members from various local tribe members.

Prior to the evening's celebration and performances various vendors and services were there to show handcrafted jewelry, pots and other goods, along with the aroma of several food booths serving Native American cuisine. The CSUSB Cross Cultural Center also had a booth, handing out commemorative event T-shirts to all in attendance.

James Ramos, a San Manuel Band of Mission Indian tribal member and the events founder and project director, talked about how California Native American Day is a way to educate the Inland Empires youth on, "factual Indian information," and to build a respect and awareness to their cultural contributions.

With more than 100 recognized tribes in California and their individual contributions, Ramos believes this form of public education is important.

Jackie Nunez finished the evening off with her view of promise. Her highly interactive performance not only entertained but her stories also served a purpose, to dispel common stereotypes.

Celebrating Hispanic Heritage Month

Suyen Urbina
Staff Writer

Hispanics are in the midst of celebration, a tribute to their heritage and their contributions to the U.S.

The celebration began Sept. 15 and continues through Oct. 15. Hispanic Heritage month traces its roots back to President Lyndon B. Johnson who proclaimed a week long celebration in 1968. It was expanded to one month in 1988.

"Hispanic Heritage is an awareness and appreciation for our origins; it honors our Hispanic culture," said student Elda Deharo-Ramirez.

Hispanics come from all over the world, including Mexico, Spain, Central America, South America, and the Caribbean. Sept. 15 is Independence Day for five Latin countries: Costa Rica, El Salvador, Guatemala, Honduras, and Nicaragua. For this reason

Sept. 15 was chosen as the starting point for the Hispanic Heritage month celebration. In addition, Mexico and Chile celebrate their Independence Days on Sept. 16 and Sept. 18 respectively.

Hispanics are the largest minority group in the United States. According to the U.S. Census Bureau, Hispanics make up 14 percent of the United States population. Over 35 million people identify themselves as Hispanic or Latino.

This month Hispanics are honored for their hard work and contribution to the nation. Hispanic politicians are also honored for their service and loyalty to our country. These politicians honored include Senator Ken Salazar, Colorado; Mayor Antonio Villaraigosa, Los Angeles; Senator Mel Martinez, Florida; Governor Bill Richardson, New Mexico.

The celebration also honors the hard work of leaders like Cesar Chavez a man to whom Hispanics look up to and admire.

"Cesar Chavez: He is the Hispanic version of Martin Luther King," said student Araceli Palomino. "He gave a voice to the migrant workers and fought for fair working conditions."

Hispanics who work in Hollywood and made it to the big screen include: Selma Hayek, Jennifer Lopez, Andy Garcia, Cameron Diaz, Penelope Cruz and Freddie Prinze Jr.

Channel 34 Univision celebrated "El Grito" in honor to Hispanic Heritage month. El Grito celebrates the independence day of various Latin America countries. The event took place in Los Angeles City Hall on Thursday, Sept. 15. Mariana Seoane, Jimena, and Los Elegidos (the "Entertainment") were the featured artists.

CSUSB has no events planned for Hispanic Heritage Month.

Even though they mainly promote the awareness of Japanese culture Iwase states that, "Everyone is welcomed to join, one would benefit greatly by becoming a member."

Coordinating and leading activities is the foundation that JSA aims provide for prospective members.

"To help student life, increase interaction and support networks amongst current members, alumni and other organizations" states Iwase, is another way JSA promotes our purpose for students.

The Afrikan Student Alliance (ASA), LUBOS P.A.S.O., Thai Student Association and Turkish Student Association are just some of the other organizations that welcome those who are interested in learning about them.

Some students might not know that these Multi-Cultural Organizations do exist here on campus but through sources like the Student Leadership and Development center, those who are interested in finding out more about these organizations can gain more access and information.

To find out more about the JSA or other clubs and organizations here on campus, one is welcomed to visit the Student Leadership and Development office located in the module units behind the Health Center in SU-119 or by visiting their Website at <http://studentleadership.csusb.edu>.

Clubs Spread Multi-Culture

Stephanie Ikenador
Staff Writer

With the new fall quarter taking shape, CSUSB's Cultural Organizations hope to make this transition into the new academic year a more interesting one for students.

These student organizations aim to enhance the awareness of specific cultures that are individually represented along with providing a community in which students can share and partake in the different activities that these clubs provide.

"By joining one of these clubs one is able to network, and gain support that might be harder for some International and even non International Students," stated Toshiyuki Iwase who is a member of the Japanese Student Association (JSA).

The JSA for instance has different activities throughout the year that help promote their purpose of awareness within student life at CSUSB.

Some of these activities include BBQ's, an Asian Cup Soccer Tournament, Volleyball Tournament, Theatre Festival and a new member welcome party.

Did you know there are people on campus who can help keep your body and mind healthy?

The CSUSB Health Center offers basic first aid services, a Counseling Center, exams for sexually transmitted diseases, pregnancy tests, and a pharmacy available for students currently enrolled at CSUSB.

The Counseling Center is available for students who may have concerns about any area of their mental health. Students can speak with Licensed Psychologists, Marriage-Family Therapists and supervised interns. All information is confidential and the first eight sessions are free.

The Health Center also has a pharmacy with a full time pharmacist, Neal Farber. The pharmacy is open during clinic hours. Students are able to get prescriptions filled at a lower cost than other local pharmacies.

The Health Center is open to all enrolled students. A Student Health Fee is paid by each student at the time of enrollment which allows them to have access to the Health Center; however, some services are not covered by this fee.

The Health Center is open Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Whooping Cough Back With A Vengeance

Becky Schultz
Staff Writer

Pertussis, also known as the whooping cough, is supposedly on the rise. In 2004, 19,000 cases were reported to the center for Disease Control and Prevention, according to the Daptacel website.

The recent increase in this illness could be due to adults and teens contracting the cough after the immunity wore off from their childhood vaccinations.

Although infants who have not been vaccinated are at the highest risk of contracting whooping cough, CSUSB students should also be very careful.

Pertussis is a highly contagious illness. It spreads through the mucos during sneezing and coughing. The higher numbers of whooping cough cases could be due to improved testing and diagnosis.

Cindy Hopkins, an R.N. at the CSUSB Health Center agreed with this assessment. It is better to be safe than sorry and all people are urged to follow the prescribed protocols for hand washing consistently to reduce as much risk of transmission as possible.

Hopkins said that CSUSB has not had any whooping cough cases in the Health Center. However, it is likely that there are cases on campus that just were not reported.

The whooping cough does not start out as just a cough. Individuals may first experience flu-like symptoms. This period is when the illness is at its most contagious state. It is called the incubation stage. Students as well as adults should be extremely careful during this stage. Coughing and sneezing can cause the disease to spread to infants and possibly other people or family members.

Whooping cough is caused by a bacterium in the nose and throat. There are three stages to this illness. The first stage is one to two weeks long in which you experience flu-like symptoms such as fever, aches, and pains. The second stage is when the "whooping" begins. Due to a thick mucus it makes breathing very difficult.

The cough has a "whooping" in between coughs when the person is gasping for air. Small children and infants have been known to turn blue or vomit from this. Eating also becomes difficult at this stage. This stage lasts for four to six weeks. Vomiting and gagging episodes are common in this stage as well.

The third and final stage you begin to breathe more easily and generally feel better. Although flu-like symptoms start to go away during this stage and can unfortunately last weeks to several months, leaving you weak and easily fatigued. To top it off, whooping cough lasts roughly 100 days from the onset of the actual cough itself, and most people don't realize they have it until they have already spread the sickness to others. Taking anti-biotics will stop the transmission, but will not shorten the duration of the sickness.

In May 2005 the FDA approved GlaxoSmithKline's Boostrix. This is a booster shot for 10 to 18-year-olds. Adults are also recommended to get a tetanus booster every ten years according to FoxNews.com.

Hopkins said the Health Center does not currently have this booster shot. However she did say, "I always recommend getting a tetanus shot every ten years." She said if you are in an accident they will immediately give you a tetanus shot, but it is good to have one as a precautionary method.

Books Breaking the Bank

Krista Teter
Staff Writer

There seems to be an issue regarding textbooks among the students of CSUSB. We are spending upwards of $300 to $400 per quarter on books for classes.

While I find this ridiculous like the rest of the population, I understand why they charge us so much.

Textbooks are expensive for a reason. There are a lot of people and places to pay for their production and shipping to the campus.

Rest assured, the costs are just as bad at other universities. One of the textbooks that I was required to purchase new for a core course at CSUSB cost me over $70. It was more than $50 used.

At Cal Poly Pomona, the same book costs over $50 used as well.

A book required in a similar course at UC Santa Barbara costs almost $90 new. It was nearly $70 used. If someone has to pay that much for one book per class, they could be paying over $300 for textbooks per quarter.

If you are one of the many students taking a full load of courses, then you likely have spent a lot of money on your required texts. I have spent at least $200 on books every quarter I have attended this school.

And prices have gone up. It is only a small increase in some cases. A couple of dollars isn't much, but it can start to add up when you're buying six books.

Some books have packets of additional material, such as CD-ROMS or keypads required for class participation. These materials are usually included with the book at no extra cost.

These costs might be easier to deal with if students could buy used textbooks. However, it seems that the cost of used books is almost that of new books.

It would be nice to sell textbooks back at the end of the quarter and regain some of your money. The problem is you have to sell them back during finals week, which can be hard to do. Many students need them to study for their exams, so they have to keep them.

How can they gouge us like this? It turns out that the prices are somewhat justified. The money goes toward the wages of employees of university bookstores as well as upkeep for the store. Production of the books themselves raises the prices. All of the charts and photos that are included to make them more interesting also make them more expensive.

There is a pamphlet available in the Coyote Bookstore entitled, "Why Do My Textbooks Cost So Much?!" It has information about where your hundreds of dollars go. It was very helpful to me and aided in understanding why we pay so much.

So it appears textbook prices are something of a necessary evil for us as students and we might do well to view these costs as something different: an important investment in our future.

'Coming Home'

Alumni Art Exhibit Showcases 40 Years of Art

Greg Dupree
Staff Writer

CSUSB Art Alumni pay homage to their alma mater by celebrating the university's 40th anniversary with "Coming Home: Art Alumni Exhibition."

The event commemorates the creative accomplishments of individuals who studied studio arts at CSUSB over the past 40 years.

The exhibit contains creations by 64 CSUSB art alumni. Many of the artists featured in "Coming Home," have gained regional, as well as national, success. The art shown displays a variety of perspectives expressed through many mediums and techniques.

When asked about how the artwork is selected, Sant Khalsa, chair of the Art Department said, "We sent out invitations, or letters, to all of our Alumni who had a major in visual arts over the last 40 years."

In order to be considered there were three criteria that the submitted artwork had to fulfill.

The first criterion is the alumni has to be continuingly creating artwork. The second is the artist must be actively involved in the production of artwork. Lastly, the artwork must be current, and be no older than five years.

Khalsa and Eva Kirsch, director of the Robert G. Fullerton Art Museum, selected which art pieces to display.

Some of the pieces featured are Linda Parnell's chandelier-like "Psyche I" made from saran wrap, acrylic tubing, and dental floss. Erik Greene offers up "Beard Bros," made with mixed media on canvas and Christine Wiseman's display, "Bohemian Girl" made from acrylic and wood.

"Coming Home: Art Alumni Exhibition" is sponsored by CSUSB Alumni Association, Robert V. Fullerton, and the CSUSB Art Department and will end on Dec. 10.

Admission is free, and on campus parking is $3.

Boring New 'Twist'

Melisa Morrow
Staff Writer

Roman Polanski has not been back in the United States since he fled the country in 1974. The American government cannot catch him, but now you can catch his latest film, "Oliver Twist," at your local Cineplex.

It's hard to say whether Polanski is more famous for his accomplishments as a director or for the controversy his very name calls to mind. His first big hit in this country was "Rosemary's Baby," back in 1968. This horror classic about a woman who is impregnated by the devil himself, won an Oscar for Best Picture.

The following year, tragedy struck Polanski in his own home. Truth proved to be more horrifying than fiction when Polanski's wife, actress Sharon Tate, was brutally murdered by the gang led by Charles Manson.

The seventies brought another professional success for Polanski with "Chinatown," starring Jack Nicholson and Faye Dunaway. This film also won an Oscar for Best Picture and launched the careers of the two stars.

Again, adversity followed triumph in Polanski's life. The same year that "Chinatown" came out in theaters, he was convicted of sexually assaulting a 13-year old girl. Instead of facing his sentence, Polanski escaped the country and has not returned since.

Being banned from American soil has not stopped Polanski from releasing his films here. "Oliver Twist" is a classic tale about an orphan boy searching the streets of London for a place where he can find love. It appears that the main fault in this remake of Dicken's classic story could be that it has no apparent target audience.

Barney Clark as Oliver Twist.

Most movies are aimed at a specific group of moviegoers. Certain people tend to favor action, adventure or comedy; others prefer a romantic drama or a family film. This movie fits in none of these categories.

Although it is based on a book written by the author of "A Christmas Carol" and it is about a young boy, do not take a child to see it. The rating says it all with a PG-13 for "disturbing images." By the way, these include drugs, children smoking and drinking, and a few violent deaths.

Despite the adult content, the movie is boring, to put it bluntly. The only reason I was able to sit through it, was because I have never seen any version of "Oliver Twist" all the way through and I was curious about how it ended.

The cinematic elements of this film were adequate. The music and cinematography were not bad, but they didn't particularly stand out. Critics say that the screenplay is the closest yet to the original work, which means there was no real creativity there either.

The one thing that did make this movie actually watchable was the acting skills of the main stars. Barney Clark played the title role. His innocence and sweetness made it impossible not to empathize with his plight and root for him to overcome.

As always, Ben Kingsley pulls off a brilliant performance as Fagin, the scoundrel who acts as a father figure to the group of street-wise kids. His ability to make a thief and child abuser into a sympathetic character is admirable.

If you are heading to the theater this weekend, I would recommend choosing something besides Polanski's "Oliver Twist." Unless of course, you are trying to make up for the sleep you lost.

First Wednesdays 'Jazz' Up CSUSB

Leticia Garcia
Staff Writer

CSUSB Music Department opened the First Wednesday Concert Series with "Chicken," "Peacocks," but few people. Stew Udem's Jazz Coalition, with featured artist Robert Kyle, provided smooth jazz to a tiny audience Wednesday evening.

Udem's Jazz Coalition, with special guest Rob Kyle, opened the session with jazz songs from the band's original collection and favorite jazz standards. Two highlights were "The Chicken" written by PeeWee Ellis, who is the band director for James Brown.

"Peacocks" was written by Kyle. The First Wednesday concert series used to see audiences of approximately 100 persons, according to interim publicity coordinator Lisa DiMarco. "Without publicity and support, we have seen those numbers diminish over the past season," she said.

The Jazz Coalition is lead by Stewart Udem on trombone and the band is made up of Maria Dykes, vocalist; James Dykes, piano; Bill Casales, bass; and Brian Pim, drums.

Robert Kyle, tenor saxophone, is an accomplished recording artist who has worked with Stevie Wonder, Chaka Khan, Micheal Bolton, Lou Rawls, Jessica Simpson, and many more. The hope for the future is to bring people back to the concert series. This season is filled with music suitable for all ages.

"Our target audience is everyone, there is great music this season," said DiMarco.

In fact, Professor Janiske was in attendance with his two young daughters, Lexi and Katie.

The next performance in the First Wednesday series will take place on Nov. 2 at 7:30 p.m. in the Performing Arts Recital Hall. It will feature faculty saxophonist Robert Knop.

Despite the small audience Stew Udem member said, "We enjoyed our audience tonight."

'Broadcast' Album Dreamy and Cheery

Stephanie Musrush
Staff Writer

"Broadcast" may have cut down in people power for "Tender Buttons," their fourth full-length album to date, but remaining members, Trish Keenan and James Cargil, over succeed in delivering a beautiful album truly evolved from the "Broadcast" of the past.

Their once thickly layered and intricate sound from previous release, "HA HA Sound" (2003 Warp Records), is replaced by fewer elements, usually consisting of mesmerizing female voices, looping keyboards and guitars, simple drum machine beats, and distorted sound effects. This seemingly stripped down approach to song-making, actually makes for more focus on the real of the art- Keenan's dreamy voice and sometimes non-sensical lyrics.

Opening track, "I Found the F," has a distorted, yet delicate keyboard descent and simple driving percussion that perfectly compliments the multiple-layered vocals of Keenan's spoken word and 1960s-influenced bending melodies.

Following second is possibly the most audibly busy song of the album, "Black Cat," which proves to be danceable, modish electro-pop. Keenan explains on the Warp Records website, that the black cat is actually a "metaphor for psychological hang-ups." The varying octaves and constant beats bring to mind bobbed women in black and white A-lines marching in time with heavily-swung arms.

"America's Boy," first single of the Tender Buttons, has been labeled typically as "critically acclaimed" and reasonably so, with lyrics such as, "gun me down with yankee power/cock pit tom with army charm." The na-na-na-na-na-like song closes with cheesy machine gun sound effects.

Individual to the album with calming Patsy Cline-ish, old school, country, characteristics, "Tears in the Typing Pool" expresses a truly genuine emotion of spirited melancholy, by way of simple folk guitar, trembling flute choirs, and layered voices. An extra whispering vocal track keeps the ear trained.

Last of the beated songs on the album, "Goodbye Girls," has train-chugging-like arpeggios wrapped with a cheerful melody, although it is actually a song about prostitutes. Keenan explains on a Warp Records press release that it's "not a negative song if you think of it as a celebration of turning off emotion."

Thought of as psychedelic folksong nursery rhyme electro-pop, "Broadcast" offers us the only evolved form of them only simplified. "Tender Buttons," in its entirety, is an easy listen from start to end, and leaves listeners with a sense of accomplishment as songs adventurously flow one to the next in unassuming, yet fitting orders. Appropriate for accompanying hazy sunshine dewy mornings or galactic explorations, this newest release of "Broadcast" has stepped down in song complexity while upping the heart and spirit levels of Keenan and Cargil's creation.

SERVING THE STUDENTS OF CSUSB FOR 39 YEARS

VOL.39 ISSUE 1

Volleyball Bounces Back

Coyotes Online

Still smarting from a rare 3-0 home defeat administered by Cal Poly Pomona on Friday, CSUSB took their frustration out on Cal State Dominguez Hills, Saturday night, with a convincing 3-0 sweep in a CCAA volleyball match in Coussoulis Arena.

The Coyotes, 12-3 overall and 6-1 in the CCAA, got a match-high 12 kills from sophomore, right-side hitter, Katie Hatch, and 11 kills and 10 digs from freshman, outside hitter, Traci Weamer (her sixth double-double of the season), to down the Toros 30-12, 30-13 and 30-16.

Sophomore setter, Kristin Ingalls, saw plenty of action, with a match-leading 20 assists, while senior setter, Cristen Trent, had 15 assists. Senior middle blocker, Amy Long, had two solo blocks and three block assists. She now has 16 solos thus far in 2005.

Kristin Sosa had a team-high six kills for the Toros, now 4-9 overall and 1-7 in the CCAA. Amber Harder had 18 assists, while libero, Sylvia Bonilla, had a match-high 11 digs.

The Toros offense was stifled by the Coyotes, hitting a minus .042 on 23 kills, in 96 attacks, with 27 attack errors. CSUSB had 13 team blocks and 22 block assists with Jessica Granados, Sara Rice, and Sharea Drawn, each getting four block assists.

The Coyotes hit a phenomenal .425 as a team, including .577 in game two as they converted 42 of 80 attacks, with just eight attack errors. Hatch hit .474 on 19 attacks, while Weamer was an efficient .611 hitting on 11 of 18. Lisa Dogonyaro notched three service aces off her jump serve. The Toros had just two block assists the entire match.

It was a rough road trip for Cal State Dominguez Hills, facing the nation's No. 10 team — UC San Diego — and the No. 2 team — Cal State San Bernardino — on successive nights.

Now it's the Coyotes turn to play tough teams on the road, starting with Cal State L.A. on Oct. 7 and Cal State Bakersfield on Oct. 8, followed by a match at UC San Diego on Oct. 15.

Soccer Goes North: Teams Finish 1-1

Valerie Evans
Staff Writer

The CSUSB men's soccer went North to play the top two teams in the northern division of the California Collegiate Athletic Association and came home 1-1, with two starters out for the next game due to red cards.

The Coyotes beat San Francisco State University in the last five seconds of overtime. The winning goal came from junior midfielder, Oscar Garcia, on a header, hitting the back of the net finalizing the score at 3-2 in the sudden death period.

The Gators were first to open the game with a goal from Mark Cipolla off a throw-in from teammate Scottie Hand. The Coyotes tied the game with a goal from senior forward, Barry Steele, on a penalty kick 30 minutes into the match. Three minutes later, the Gators took the lead again on a penalty kick from Paul Carter, making the score 2-1.

The game stayed tight until CSUSB sophomore forward, Lorenzo Losen, took a pass from Steele and blasted a shot past SFSU keeper, Kenny Brandenburg, tying the game at two. Steele was a huge asset to San Bernardino as he scored one and assisted on two goals to help the team come out with a win.

"It was a great comeback," said Coyote's Coach, Noah Kooiman. "The team showed a lot of character and I knew we weren't going to lose."

CSUSB wasn't as successful against Sonoma State University. With a total of 46 fouls and two red cards, the Seawolves definitely won in ugly fashion.

Coyote's keeper, Jeff Canada, was unlucky in the 40th minute as Seawolves' forward, Nathan Medina, blocked a clearance from Canada and deflected it into the net. The Seawolves second goal came from a penalty kick in the 80th minute by Travis Ryan.

Garcia and senior, David McConnell, were ejected from the game, leaving the team with only nine players on the field.

"We needed to play through our mistakes and not sit on anything we don't have control over," said Kooiman. "It was an ugly win for Sonoma and we can't blame anyone but ourselves."

The Coyotes are currently in first place in the southern division of the CCAA, with the record of 5-4-1 overall and 4-2 in conference.

On the flip side, the women's soccer team went 1-1 on a recent road trip against SFSU and Sonoma State.

"It would have been a lot nicer if we flew, but whatever you have to do to get to the game," said freshman forward, Kylie Kegans. "The trip was long, but I was excited to go and play two teams that we want to beat."

San Bernardino beat San Francisco, 3-1, with two goals from freshman forward, Terina Dillon, and one from freshman defender, Lizzy Redmond.

In the first half, the Coyotes were down 1-0, with a goal from SFSU's Maya Patrick on a cross from teammate Candice Silva.

The 'Yotes came back in the second half, with their first goal on a corner kick from senior forward, Valerie Evans, as Redmond blasted it past the keeper.

Two minutes later, Evans slotted the ball to Dillon, who had a strike with her left foot into the upper corner of the goal. She was unassisted on her third goal, clinching the game for the Coyotes.

For the second game, at Sonoma State, CSUSB was defeated by a 2-0 score. Both of Sonoma's goals came in the first half, one with a chip over sophomore goalkeeper, Leslie Rhodes, head from Sonoma's Brittany Peterson.

The Seawolves' second goal came from Megan Catton, on a penalty kick in the last five seconds of the first half, with a foul in the box from Rhodes.

CSUSB played hard in the second half, but were unable to muster up a successful comeback.

"We didn't capitalize on our good opportunities," stated Kooiman. "We need to be able to play for a full 90 minute game with intensity."

So far, the Coyotes are 4-5 in the season and 2-4 in the CCAA conference.

The legs of the CSUSB women's cross country team are just getting started, as senior All-American, Tanya Zeferjahn, leads them to the finish line. The Coyotes have competed in four meets so far this year, and Zeferjahn has placed respectively at each meet.

The Coyotes went to a four-way cross country meet at University of California San Diego on Aug. 27, and Zeferjahn finished second. She was clocked at 15:28:5. Sophomore, Holly DiGerolamo, finished 13th and was timed at 17:10:07. Following her, were freshman Jordan Arnswald, junior Becky Southworth, freshman Kari Brandt, junior Brook Etter, and freshman Kristen Torrez.

The host team, Tritons, won the event with 19 points and the 'Yotes tied for second with Point Loma Nazarene University, with 60 points.

CSUSB's next meet took place on Sept. 10, at UC Irvine, where they finished in 10th place. Zeferjahn had another outstanding race, finishing 6th over 200 runners and was timed at 18:42 at the 5,000 meter course. DiGerolamo placed 56th, with a time of 20:24.1 and Arnswald placed 64th, with a time of 20:41.2.

"It was a big field, with a lot of outstanding runners and we continue to show improvement," said Coach Tom Burleson. "I was very pleased by our effort."

Chico State, the defending champions, won the event with 48 points. CSUSB finished the meet with a respectable 281 points.

On Sept. 24, the Coyotes placed 24th in the Stanford cross country invitational. In a field of over 300 runners and 37 teams, Coach Burleson was very supportive of his team.

"Tanya (Zeferjahn) was disappointed in her performance," said Burleson. "But as a whole, I thought the team performed very well in their first 6K race of the season."

Zeferjahn finished 83rd at 23:40.

The other four Coyote ladies finished just 38 seconds apart. DiGerolamo was 142nd, with a time of 24:38, followed by Arnswald, in 158th, at 24:51, Sophomore Megan Holt in 164th, at 24:56, and Southworth in 181st, at 25:81.

The Stanford team won the race with 36 points, while Chico State was second with 136 points.

The next meet took place at UC Riverside, on Oct. 1. Zeferjahn took everyone by surprise with her new record for the 5,000 meter course. In the field of 92 runners the talented All-American finished 13th. Her time was astonishing at 18:28.8. Zeferjahn set a record of 18:31.8 in this event last year.

Although all of our CSUSB women did a fantastic job at this meet, Cal State Fullerton won the title with 96 points.

San Jose State finished in second place, and Concordia University Irvine placed third with 110 points.

Alumnus Takes Over Tennis

Heather Lehman, the most successful tennis player in the history of the CSUSB women's program, has been appointed head coach of the Coyotes team for 2005-06.

Lehman, a 2004 graduate of CSUSB, with 30 singles match victories and 25 doubles match victories to her credit, replaces her mentor, Tom Starzyk, who resigned after coaching the team for the past seven seasons.

Like her predecessors, Lehman, who teaches physical education full-time at Kucera Middle School in Rialto, will be a part-time coach at CSUSB.

"I am thrilled that Heather has accepted this position. She has been an integral part of our tennis program for the past five years as a student-athlete and as an assistant coach," said Nancy Simpson, director of athletics.

"It is fitting for her to continue to be involved and able to focus her energies on taking this program to the next level," Simpson said.

Lehman helped turn the tennis program around when she began to play as a freshman in 2000-01, after being a success in multiple sports at nearby Cajon High School. She was a five-sport letter-winner at Cajon and was the 1999-00 San Bernardino County Female Athlete of the Year, as chosen by The Sun newspaper.

She inherits a team that has six players back from last season including sophomore Jennifer Joy, an all-CCAA first-team pick and CCAA freshman of the year. Joy's doubles partner, senior Corissa Cooks, is also back, along with sophomore Priscilla Cooper, senior Debbie Christ, junior Doreen Fernandez and senior Lana Johnson.

"I'm definitely excited and I am looking forward to building a relationship with the players and developing the program, as well as raising awareness of the tennis program on campus and in the community," said Lehman.

Fantasy Scores Cash

Every year, around late August early September, millions of sports fans try to make fantasy become reality. The ultimate sports fan that never played sports, mixed in with a couple of has-beens and never-where's, congregate in garages all across America for one thing.

"With the number one pick in the 2005 NFL Fantasy Football Draft, Joe's Army selects LaDainian Tomlinson."

Close to eight million people form leagues at all levels. Some play just for fun, others play for pocket change, and the majority plays for big bucks. According to the World Championships of Fantasy Football, the big money leagues cost $1,800 a team and they compete with over 720 players in 60, different leagues all for a chance to win $200,000, a crystal trophy and a trip to Hawaii for the Pro Bowl.

Fantasy Football has fast become a money making business. Web-sites and magazines are devoted to crunching data that provide expert advice in picking your team. Most teams consist of 16 players that you choose from any of the NFL teams. During each week, you pick from a list of players to form your team that must include: one quarterback, two running backs, three wide receivers, one tight-end, one kicker and one team defense.

Based on the performance of the players you picked, you earn points. At the end of each week, the points are added up to determine a winner and a loser. During the 17 week NFL season, you must pick and rotate players on your team that give you the best chance to win, week in and week out.

I truly believe that fantasy football is a good thing for the NFL. It encourages people to care about other teams in the league besides their favorite. It draws in more viewers for TV ratings. A package from Direct TV called Direct Ticket, allows every fan to watch all the games that are being played on Sunday.

The ultimate arm chair quarterback fan will put in 10 - 12 hours of work on the couch to view football on Sunday. Games are played at 10 a.m., 1 p.m. and 5:30 p.m., each game lasting around three hours. They only take restroom and food breaks.

And don't forget the Monday night game. That's like working overtime.

Fantasy football also attracts new football fans, while informing old ones about competition and the success of victory.

This game is far from being a fantasy, but you will just have to play to find out.
